Prayer Focus

The political and humanitarian crisis that has gripped Haiti is continuing, with no sign yet that stability can be restored. At the time of writing, the nine-member transitional council running the country has voted to remove Prime Minister Garry Conille after just five months in office, though it is unclear whether the council has the authority to enforce its decision. Criminal gangs continue to control 80% of the Haitian capital Port-au-Prince, and more than 700,000 people have been displaced by persistent violence. The situation has led to "crisis" levels of food shortage. The political and humanitarian crisis that has gripped Haiti is continuing, with no sign yet that stability can be restored.
